Introduction

The "Horsforth Golf Club" was formed by a number of residents on 8th November, 1906. Funds were immediately raised by eighteen gentlemen promising Life Membership for themselves and their wives.

It was soon decided to form a Company limited by guarantee and take lease of land on the Rawdon Estate from W.E.J. Green-Emmott embracing about 80 acres situate near Rawdon Billing.

So quickly did the membership grow that the erection of the present Clubhouse was soon warranted, the necessary funds being raised by the issue of Debentures amongst the members and on 10th August, 1907 the Links and Clubhouse were officially opened.

1913 the Clubhouse was destroyed by fire but the replacement was soon in operation.

Horsforth joined the Leeds and District Union of Golf Clubs upon its formation in 1920. The Clubhouse was altered in 1921 to provide further accommodation and a locker room, and in 1923 the putting green was laid in front of the Clubhouse.

Part of the course was requisitioned by the Air Ministry in 1942 and subsequent to the war relatively little development took place during the 1940s and the whole of the 1950s. Airport extensions in the 1960s led to an anxious time for the Club but in 1964 plans for the reconstruction of the course were agreed. These included the new 16th and 17th holes, shortening of the 3rd, discarding of the short 7th and the lengthening of the 6th to a new green.

The Course

This parkland and moorland course, designed by Dr Alistair Mackenzie always presented in good condition, combines devilish short holes with some altogether more substantial challenges.

The heathland the course was built on is slowly changing due to tree planting over the last thirty years. The course was once catchment land for Horsforth water authority, two of the abandoned reservoirs forming part of the course boundary.

The 1st begins with a slight incline away from the Clubhouse and is protected by a ditch on the right and OOB on the left, the course continues by offering a variety of par 3's & 4's and ending with a par 5.

The short par-four 10th and long closing hole are perhaps outstanding examples. The former, at little over 300 yards, offers the adventurous the opportunity to drive the green by taking on a blind shot with out-of-bounds inside the angle of the left-hand dog-leg. Those laying up will find even a wedge approach to the narrow ledge of a green a ticklish proposition. The 18th, meanwhile is close to 550 yards long and plays over the brow of a hill before the s-shaped fairway tumbles down to a green protected by a stream at the front, with the spacious clubhouse providing a fitting backdrop.

Horsforth celebrated its Centenary in 2006.

The Clubhouse, for a small room hire fee, offers good facilities for off site meetings and parties or social get togethers.

Corporate Membership

Corporate Membership of a "private members golf club" is almost unique. Its advantages lie in the differing levels, and the flexibility within each type of membership.

Company corporate membership allows for each player to feel he or she is a member of the golf club, with all the benefits membership attracts. The ability to book times only reserved for members, being of primary importance.

Relaxed "après golf" can be enjoyed in either the dining room or lounge, catering is available every day. Add to that a bar with an excellent choice of beers, wines and spirits and you have an ideal recipe for entertaining and relaxing with clients, colleagues and friends.

There is also the availability of rooms for off site meetings at a reduced members rate.

Our package will give the freedom to book 14 weekday tee times, two per calendar month, throughout the summer months. Each tee time can be for up to four people giving you the opportunity to reward or entertain several clients, or staff, at once.

Once the corporate membership has been confirmed, you may book your tee times simply by making a call to the Professional who will be happy to help you. The bronze package price is £735 + VAT, which works out at under £15 per round for six months (April - September), with October tee times FREE...

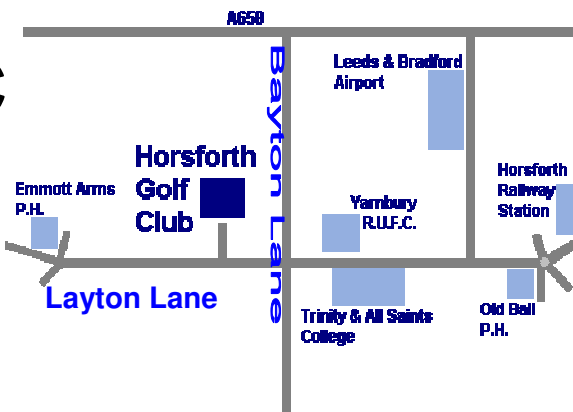

The silver package gives even more value for money.
